The impact of COVID-19 on education and children's services

Inquiry

The inquiry will look at how the outbreak of COVID-19 is affecting all aspects of the education sector and children's social care system and will scrutinise how the Department for Education is dealing with the situation.

It will examine both short term impacts, such as the effects of school closures and exam cancellations, as well as

Drawing on data from four major empirical studies over the last 18 months,
consulting +7000 UK HE workers

A person's hand is visible in the foreground, gesturing towards a laptop screen. The laptop screen displays a video conference with six participants arranged in a 3x2 grid. The background shows a wooden desk with a smartphone and a potted plant on a shelf. A large green rectangle is in the top right corner, and a dark grey semi-transparent rectangle covers the right side of the image, containing the text.

UK HE academic staff: Immediate perspectives on transitioning to remote working

Overview

- ▶ Online attitudinal survey of educators (worldwide/across sectors), generating almost N=3000 responses
- ▶ Distributed through professional networks
- ▶ N=1,148 responses academics working in UK universities: England n=907; Wales n=110; Scotland n=104; Northern Ireland N=25
- ▶ Respondents representing all disciplinary fields & career hierarchy
- ▶ Gender split: 58% female, 39% male, 1% prefer to self-describe, 2% prefer not to say
- ▶ Employment status:
 - ▶ 79% Full-Time
 - ▶ 83% Open-Ended Contracts

■ England ■ Scotland ■ Wales ■ Northern Ireland

Headline findings

■ Preparedness ■ Confidence ■ Support ■ Access

PREPAREDNESS, CONFIDENCE, SUPPORT and ACCESS by POSITION

Key themes (2020)

- ▶ Destabilisation of student marketplace in the UK:
 - ▶ issues of recruitment and retention; threat from private HE providers and edtech sector;
- ▶ Economic impact not only in terms of decreased revenue from tuition fees but other university services and by extension to local economies/national GDP;
- ▶ Deprofessionalisation, dumbing-down;
- ▶ Precarisation, jobs obsolescence, job cuts;
- ▶ Work intensification, gender inequality;
- ▶ Cessation of research: impact on academic labour market (e.g. ECRs)
- ▶ Limited identification with digital affordances and digital practice.

health and wellbeing

“Pandemia” (2021)

Overview

International survey of N=2649 academics; n=1099 UK (65% female; 61% open-ended contracts; 66% from “research intensive” universities)

Key Themes

- Crisis-management = creep of undemocratic forms of institutional governance; cost-cutting (disaster management); deprioritisation of research;
- Impaired trust in university leadership;
- Increase in labour casualisation; job insecurity;
- Rise in work exploitation and work-based inequalities;
- “Digital fatigue”, availability and student experience.

Headline Statistics

84%: corporate response of universities has contributed to work related stress

85%: suffering from digital fatigue

77%: feeling demotivated

81%: major damage to the job prospects of ECRs

92%: changes to academics' working lives as a consequence of institutional responses to COVID-19 have resulted in long-lasting impacts to health and wellbeing

The background of the slide is a blurred office scene. On the left, a laptop screen is visible. In the center, there is a black and white mug. In the foreground, there are papers, a pen, and a paperclip. A dark grey semi-transparent rectangle covers the right side of the image, containing the text.

The future of learning [in HE]?

- ▶ The COVID-19 context has not yet gone away, but has shifted — a new (ab)normal, innovative ways of working?
- ▶ Rethinking/refreshing/resetting: what/how/where of learning?
- ▶ Impact across different settings, disciplines and demographics;
- ▶ Renewed focus on digital pedagogy and practice (infrastructure, faculty, pro services, students, society?);
- ▶ Investment in professional learning/development;
- ▶ More criticality needed on widespread application of edtech;
- ▶ Emerging policy context: societal impact, post-COVID economic recovery, prominence of “digital”, future skills demands.
